Feedback Control Theory - University of Toronto

Feedback occurs when outputs of a system are routed back as inputs as part of a chain of cause-and-effect that forms a circuit or loop. The system can then be said to feed back into itself. The notion of cause-and-effect has to be handled carefully when applied to feedback systems: Simple causal reasoning about a feedback system is difficult because the first system influences the second and ...

Control theory in control systems engineering is a subfield of mathematics that deals with the control of continuously operating dynamical systems in engineered processes and machines. The objective is to develop a control model for controlling such systems using a control action in an optimum manner without delay or overshoot and ensuring control stability.

Network management has become challenging, requiring automated mechanisms to detect traffic behaviour, which may affect the networks' availability and reliability. Thus, a traffic characterization, called digital signature of network segment using flow analysis, is accomplished. The models used for ...
