In 1950, Macmillan Company published Immanuel Velikovsky's Worlds in Collision, a book which asserts, among many other things, that the planet Venus did not exist until recently. Some 3500 years ago in the guise of a gigantic comet, it grazed Earth a couple of times, after having been ejected from the planet Jupiter some indefinite time earlier, before settling into its current orbit.

His research and time dedicated to writing Worlds in Collision is unmatched in modern literary circles and the knowledge this book contains cuts through some of the World's Elite dictation of what you should believe and were taught to believe and this was the main reason Mr. Velikovsky suffered the harassment and ostracisation he experienced.
