Young Bright Children. ... There are a few stumbling blocks for parents and educators of gifted young children. Young gifted learners are a heterogeneous group where each child develops skills and abilities at different rates; so while one 4 year old may be able to add and subtract numbers, he may struggle to draw a recognizable house or take ...

Young Bright Children | National Association for Gifted

Because no two gifted children are alike is important to collect information on both the child's performance and potential through a combination of objective (quantifiably measured) and subjective (personally observed) identification instruments in order to identify gifted and talented students.
